About the Cover

Costumer and Viking reenactor Parry Morton was called on by the drama teacher at his local high school to help out with a production of A Midsummer Night's Dream by teaching the students who would be playing faeries to make their own wings. Parry saw this as an excellent opportunity to pique their interest in costuming. His cover photo is from the production. In his article starting on page 8, Parry talks about his experience working with the students, and provides details about the materials and the techniques they used to make their wings.
